

Over 143 million children worldwide have been orphaned, abandoned, or taken from their parents due to extreme abuse or neglect. These children live in foster homes, institutions, and on the streets.

For many of these children, adoption into a loving family is the right thing.

Gift of Adoption addresses the needs of waiting children by providing grants to qualified parents to complete the process – giving children without families permanent homes and the chance to thrive.

To date we've provided over $4.9m to unite more than 1,700 children with their forever families. Half of our grants help children born in the United States. Highest priority is given to uniting biological siblings, preventing children from entering into foster care or from "aging out" of orphanages, and expediting adoptions of children with critical medical conditions.

Gift of Adoption provides a way for all of us to give to adoption like we give to other essential causes such as homelessness, hunger and education. When you help a child get adopted you are giving him access to the most tried and true social service of all, a family. And the dignity that comes from being a regular part of a family is transformative and profound.

- Learning what the word 'mom' means and to ride on shoulders
- Going to kindergarten well rested and fed
- Getting braces and going to prom
- Taking swimming lessons at the "Y"

This is what our families tell us the gift of adoption means... and what we are inviting you to be a part of...

You don't have to adopt to give a child a loving home.

Meet Jeremiah

Jeremiah is a one-year-old boy who was abandoned at the hospital shortly after his birth. He suffered from exposure to a variety of substances during pregnancy. Upon hearing about Jeremiah, Dorothy and Robert decided to act. They knew if Jeremiah was not adopted quickly, he would likely end up in long term foster care due to his birth circumstances.

Once in foster care, the average child waits five years to be adopted and each year 20% of these children exit foster care at the age of 18 without an adoptive family.

A grant from Gift of Adoption allowed Dorothy and Robert to adopt Jeremiah and keep him from ever becoming a part of these statistics.
