

You don't have to adopt to give a child a family

What is

Adoption is a legal process through which you can give a child a permanent home and a chance to thrive. The organization provides the best tools to complete the adoption of either born in the U.S. and abroad (see world).

Why

Every three seconds there is a child born in the world with a family. In the U.S., about 100,000 children are born every year. The majority of these children are born to parents who are not the biological parents. This means that many children are born to parents who are not the biological parents.
